

CHINGU UNIVERSE

48-Episode Korean-Style Friendship Series

Full creative and production response to the Chingu Soju production house brief.
Six monthly batches · 9:16 vertical · Target launch October 2026.

▶ 48
Episodes

📦 6
Batches

📷 18
Shoot days

📱 9:16
Vertical

Prepared for · Chingu Soju

[AWAKEN Entertainment] | [2026]

PRODUCTION PROPOSAL

What's Inside

Every section of this proposal maps to a numbered deliverable from the brief.

1	Detailed Cost Breakdown	$ Twelve cost categories, excluding Khin Wint Wah & A Linn Young fees	Slides 37–40
2	Execution & Production Plan	📅 Approach, pre-production, shooting, post, revision, responsibilities	Slides 23–30
3	Production Timeline	📅 Six-month schedule with batch cycle and delivery dates	Slides 31–32
4	Team Structure	👥 Full crew map, department by department	Slide 33
5	Creative Treatment	📝 Directing, visual style, tone, references, 48-episode consistency	Slides 6–21
6	Shooting Requirements	📷 Days, locations, equipment, props, wardrobe, cast, logistics	Slides 34–35
7	Revision Policy	🔄 Rounds included, coverage, extra charges, reshoot conditions	Slide 41
8	Payment Terms	📅 Schedule, advance, milestones, cancellation, approvals	Slide 42
9	Risk & Contingency Plan	🛡️ Talent, weather, equipment, delays, reshoots, schedule change	Slide 43

How We Read The Brief

Three constraints define this project. Everything in our plan answers one of them.

Volume is the real challenge

48 complete stories in six months is not a film problem — it is a systems problem. It is won in pre-production, in a script bank and a repeatable shoot grammar, not on set.

Consistency must survive six months

The same three faces, the same apartment, the same grade, half a year apart. Without a locked bible and continuity discipline, batch 6 will not cut against batch 1.

The turn must be seen, not said

'No Filter Unlocked' is a craft brief, not a caption. It lives in two lighting states, two grades and two editing rhythms — designed once, executed 48 times.

Our answer in one line:

Build the universe once — bible, sets, wardrobe, outro templates, beauty shots — then run six identical, low-risk monthly cycles against it.

Our Strategic Answer

One build phase, six repeating cycles, one bank of finished episodes always ahead of air.

PHASE 01

The Build

Roughly three weeks, once.

- Series bible & 48-episode story map
- Casting and chemistry test
- Location lock + apartment retainer
- Wardrobe & character prop kits
- Grade LUTs: Filtered / No Filter
- 2D outro templates (2/3/4/5 cast)
- Master beauty shot per flavour

PHASE 02

The Whole Campaign -1 Month (21 days Shooting)

Structured rollout across launch phases, keeping production agile and predictable.

Week 1

Scripts locked & approved

48 episodes signed off from the story bank

Week 2

Prep & table read

Shot lists, wardrobe continuity plan, call sheets

Week 3

21 days batch shoot

~3 episodes per day, grouped by set-up not story

Week 4

Post & delivery

Month by Month (8 edits, grade, sound, outro render, subtitles)

One batch always in the bank.

From month two onward we shoot one batch ahead of transmission. A weather day, a sick actor or a late approval never touches the release calendar.

SECTION 01

Creative Treatment

Deliverable 5. Directing approach, visual style, mood and tone, cinematography, lighting, editing, music, references, and how all of it stays identical across 48 episodes.

The Episode Engine

DELIVERABLE 5

The brief names six friendship situations. Six situations × eight episodes each = 48. That is the whole season.

8

Misunderstanding

Something is read the wrong way and nobody corrects it in time.

8

Hidden Opinion

Everyone agrees out loud. Nobody agrees privately.

8

Small Lie

A harmless lie told to be polite, then defended past all reason.

8

Secret Crush

The one thing the group has all noticed and nobody will name.

8

Awkward Reunion

Someone returns and the old dynamic no longer fits.

8

Group-Chat Problem

A message, a screenshot, a typo, a wrong recipient.

Why this matters commercially

- Writers are never staring at a blank page — every brief starts inside a defined bucket.
- Eight variations of one situation type can be shot in the same batch, on the same set-up, in the same wardrobe.
- The audience learns the shape of the show, so the 'No Filter' turn lands harder every time.
- Any episode can be replaced from within its own bucket without disturbing the release order.

The Season Map

DELIVERABLE 5

All 48 episodes assigned to a bucket and a batch before a single word is written. This is the document the writers' room works from.

Alternative Title Directions

DELIVERABLE 5

The brief invites alternatives that keep a Korean identity and the transformation cue. Four directions, one recommended.

RETAIN

CHINGU MODE: ON

The client's working title

Already carries the transformation cue and the brand name. Safest, and it tests well as a spoken tag. Our fallback if the client prefers continuity with internal decks.

RECOMMENDED

NO FILTER, PLEASE

Recommended

Reads as a restaurant order — the exact register of the show's world. Sits naturally under a Hong Dae Pocha sign, works as a spoken line inside episodes, and turns the payoff into a request rather than a slogan.

ALTERNATIVE

90 SECONDS OF HONESTY

Format-forward

Names the runtime as a promise. Strong for the algorithm and for a scroll-stopping thumbnail. Risk: it dates the format if episode length ever changes.

ALTERNATIVE

CHINGU UNLOCKED

Brand-forward

Puts the product name first and keeps 'unlocked' from the campaign line. Most direct for DBA recall; least distinctive as a show title.

In every direction the on-screen payoff card stays as briefed: NO FILTER UNLOCKED.

The Three Chingu

Two male, one female, early twenties, university-age.
Each one's filter hides the opposite of what you'd expect.

DELIVERABLE 5

KO ZIN

22 · The Overthinker

Plans everything twice, says half of it.
The one who books the table and brings a spare charger.

Filtered: diplomatic to the point of uselessness.

No Filter: devastatingly blunt, and always right.

Prop: an oversized tote with a contingency for every outcome.

[https://www.facebook.com/
aunglay.M4LL](https://www.facebook.com/aunglay.M4LL)

SAI NAING

21 · The Chaos

Speaks before thinking and thinks out loud. Volume is his entire personality
— until it isn't.

Filtered: loud opinions about nothing that matters.

No Filter: unexpectedly sincere. His noise hides feeling, not opinion.

Prop: sunglasses worn indoors, at night, permanently.

[https://www.facebook.com/
thant.zawtunizvillain](https://www.facebook.com/thant.zawtunizvillain)

EI MON

22 · The Scanner

Reads the room before anyone opens their mouth. Keeps everyone's secrets, including the ones they never told her.

Filtered: perfectly agreeable, gives nothing away.

No Filter: reveals she has known the whole time.

Prop: a cracked phone screen she refuses to replace.

[https://www.facebook.com/
AhNittisnoob](https://www.facebook.com/AhNittisnoob)

Recurring Characters & Guest Logic

Approximately six of the 48 episodes feature the brand ambassadors. We propose where, and why.

DELIVERABLE 5

A LINN YOUNG

The Sunbae • 3 episodes

The senior everyone straightens up for. His presence raises the group's filter to maximum — which makes the collapse funnier. Placed at Episodes 9, 25 and 41 so each batch-quarter has one 'best behaviour' peak.

KHIN WINT WAH

The Returnee • 3 episodes

The friend who left and came back. She owns the 'awkward reunion' bucket and gives the universe a sense of elapsed time. Placed at Episodes 16, 32 and 48 as season punctuation, including the finale.

 Cast-size rhythm across the season

10 eps

2 characters

Two-handers. Cheapest to shoot, strongest for intimacy and confession beats.

26 eps

3 characters

The default. The core squad, no guests. Carries the identity of the universe.

8 eps

4 characters

Core three plus one supporting or ambassador.

4 eps

5 characters

Event episodes. Both ambassadors, or a celebration / karaoke setting.

This mix is what drives the four outro templates on slide 20. Ambassador fees are excluded from our costing, per the brief.

The No-Filter Turn

DELIVERABLE 5

The brief asks for a visible transition. We design it once as a two-state system and execute it identically 48 times.

BEFORE · FILTERED

-  Camera Locked-off, symmetrical, wide. Nobody moves the frame.
-  Lens 35mm. Everyone kept in the same shot together.
-  Grade Cooler LUT, lifted blacks, lower saturation.
-  Light Even, flat, top-heavy. No modelling on faces.
-  Cut Long holds. Average shot length ~4 seconds.
-  Sound Room tone only. Clean, slightly sterile.
-  Performance Restrained. Politeness doing all the work.

AFTER · NO FILTER

-  Camera Handheld, off-axis, closer. The frame reacts.
-  Lens 50mm and 85mm. Faces isolated, singles only.
-  Grade Warm LUT, deeper blacks, richer skin.
-  Light Practicals and neon. Modelled, directional.
-  Cut Fast reaction cutting. ~1.5 seconds.
-  Sound Music enters. Room comes alive.
-  Performance Unguarded. The truth arrives mid-sentence.

Sample Episodes · 01–03

DELIVERABLE 5

Six concepts written to prove the engine. Each one sits in a named bucket and runs to 90–120 seconds.

GROUP-CHAT

3 cast · Home

The Read Receipt

SET-UP

Sai's message to his crush has been read for six hours. No reply. The squad conducts a forensic examination of all fourteen words.

TURN

Ei Mon quietly reveals she has had the crush's number the entire time.

NO FILTER UNLOCKED

Sai admits he doesn't want a reply. He wants a reason to go over there.

HIDDEN OPINION

3 cast · Pocha

Who Poured This

SET-UP

A fourth glass sits filled at a table for three. Nobody will admit to pouring it. Everyone is extremely gracious about it.

TURN

The politeness escalates until they are arguing about who is being most polite.

NO FILTER UNLOCKED

Ko Zin poured it for someone who does not come out with them anymore.

SMALL LIE

4 cast · Home

Screenshot

SET-UP

Someone screenshotted the group chat into a different group chat. The screenshot has come back. All three perform total innocence.

TURN

Each denial contains a detail only the person who took it could know.

NO FILTER UNLOCKED

All three of them did it. In three separate chats. About each other.

Full scripts for Batch 1 would be delivered for approval during the build phase, per the timeline on slide 31.

Sample Episodes · 04–06

DELIVERABLE 5

Two ambassador episodes and one two-hander, showing how cast size changes the shape of the story.

MISUNDERSTANDING4 cast · Pocha

Sunbae Is Watching

SET-UP

A Linn Young joins the table. The squad performs the most mature, well-adjusted version of themselves that has ever existed.

TURN

He matches their formality perfectly, which they read as disapproval and escalate against.

NO FILTER UNLOCKED

The sunbae is more chaotic than all three of them combined.

AWKWARD REUNION5 cast · Pocha

The Welcome Committee

SET-UP

Khin Wint Wah is back from abroad. The group has over-prepared a welcome so thoughtful it is unbearable for everyone involved.

TURN

Every gesture lands slightly wrong. She is gracious about all of it, which makes it worse.

NO FILTER UNLOCKED

She didn't miss the restaurant. She missed the way they argue about it.

SECRET CRUSH2 cast · Home

Two Truths

SET-UP

Ko Zin and Ei Mon wait for Sai, who is late. They make conversation. They make more conversation. They run out of conversation.

TURN

Both keep checking the door for a person they already know is not coming.

NO FILTER UNLOCKED

They each knew Sai wasn't coming. Neither wanted to be the one to say it.

Note the two-hander: at ten episodes across the season it is our efficiency lever, and it delivers the strongest emotional beats.

Storyboard · Episode 01, 'The Read Receipt'

DELIVERABLE 5

Six frames, ninety seconds. The grade, the lens and the cutting rhythm all change on frame four.

010:00

is behind a pocha table, hanging lamp above, grill ar

WIDE

Filtered

Cold open. Three friends, one table, symmetrical and still. Sai stares at his phone.

020:12

INSERT

Filtered

Cut to the phone. 'Read 6h ago'. Held two beats longer than comfortable.

030:30

OTS

Filtered

Over Ko Zin's shoulder. The forensic analysis begins. Nobody moves the frame.

040:48

CU · PUSH

The Turn

The pour. Camera comes off the tripod and pushes in. Grade warms mid-shot.

050:56

SINGLES

No Filter

Fast reaction cutting between three faces. Ei Mon reveals she has the number.

061:32

OUTRO

Payoff

Freeze, 2D transformation, label world, bottle, campaign line.

FILTERED · cool, still, wide

THE POUR

NO FILTER · warm, handheld, close

🕒 Every episode is boarded to this same six-frame spine.

Boarding 48 episodes is only affordable because the shape never changes. The writers vary the situation and the payoff; the shot grammar stays fixed, which is also what lets us shoot three episodes in a day.

Directing Approach

DELIVERABLE 5

The comedy is in the reaction, not the line. We direct for the face that hears it.

Cast the chemistry, not the résumé

We screen-test in threes, never alone. The audition brief is an improvised version of a real episode. What we are buying is the interruption rhythm between three people, because that is what the audience returns for.

Shoot the listener

Every set-up is covered for reactions before the speaker. In a two-minute episode the laugh is almost always on the face receiving the line, and reaction coverage is what makes 48 episodes cuttable at speed.

Rehearse the turn, improvise the set-up

The set-up is written tight and shot on the page. The no-filter section is run three times: as written, one degree warmer, then unscripted. The third take is usually the one that airs.

Direct in K-drama grammar, deliberately

The push-in, the held pause, the sudden cut to a wide. These are quoted knowingly, not imitated. The audience recognises the language and enjoys being in on it.

One director across all six batches, with a second-unit AD for pick-ups. Consistency of performance is a directing decision before it is a post decision.

Visual Style, Cinematography & Lighting

DELIVERABLE 5

Polished Korean web drama, adapted for a vertical frame and a scrolling thumb.

Cinematography

- Cinema camera, 4K, shot and framed natively for 9:16
- Prime lenses: 35 / 50 / 85mm
- Shallow depth on singles, deep on group wides
- Eye-level for the squad; slight low angle for the sunbae
- Intentional K-drama push-ins reserved for the turn
- Product always in the lower third, in focus, never centred over a face

Lighting

- Soft key through diffusion, natural window direction
- Practicals carry the warmth: neon, pendant lamps, table lights
- Filtered state: flat, even, cool top light
- No Filter state: modelled, warm, directional, deeper falloff
- Skin tones natural and unpushed across all six months
- Two lighting states pre-built per set so the switch is a re-plug, not a re-rig

Grade & Frame

- Two locked LUTs applied from Batch 1 to Batch 6
- Cinematic but never glossy — grain retained, highlights soft
- Safe-zone template for platform UI on every export
- Text and payoff cards positioned above the caption band
- Product-friendly table compositions blocked at shot-list stage
- One colourist across the season, single reference still per set

References:

Work Later, Drink Now (tone and drinking-table blocking) · Netflix 'The Swoon' shorts (vertical comedy timing) · Korean web-drama singles coverage · Hong Dae Pocha as the real-world anchor.

The 9:16 Frame

DELIVERABLE 5

Vertical is a composition discipline, not a crop. Every set-up is blocked for a phone in a hand, with platform UI accounted for at shot-list stage.

Safe zones

Top 12% and bottom 20% belong to platform UI. Nothing meaningful sits there.

Product blocking

Faces upper two-thirds, product lower third — in focus, never over a face.

The payoff card

Lands in the safe band, above captions, at a fixed position every episode.

What this changes on set

Framed natively, not cropped

We shoot 9:16 in camera with a 16:9 protect. Cropping a horizontal master loses the faces.

Three people, one vertical frame

Two-shots stack diagonally rather than sitting side by side. Five-hand scenes are covered in singles.

Closer than you think

A 9:16 wide reads as a mid. Our 'wide' is roughly a waist-up, or the group is unreadable at phone size.

Text sized for a thumb

Payoff cards and subtitles are set at a size legible on a 6-inch screen, checked on device before delivery.

Reviewed on a phone

Every first cut is QC'd on an actual handset, in the safe-zone template, before it goes to the client.

Editing, Pacing, Music & Sound

DELIVERABLE 5

Two minutes is the ceiling, not the target. Most episodes should land at 90–105 seconds.

0:00–0:08

The Hook

Cold open on the problem. No establishing shot, no logo, no names. The situation is legible in one line.

0:08–0:45

Filtered

Politeness holds. Wide, still, cool. Tension builds under the surface with nobody naming it.

0:45–0:55

The Trigger

The bottle opens or the glass is poured. Grade shifts, camera comes off the tripod, music enters.

0:55–1:30

No Filter

Fast reaction cutting, singles, overlapping dialogue. The truth surfaces and lands.

1:30–1:50

Outro

Freeze, 2D transformation, Chingu label world, bottle, campaign line.

Music

One custom cue library commissioned in the build phase: three moods, six lengths. Fully licensed, reusable across all 48.

Sound

Clean location dialogue, lavs plus boom. The pour, the clink and the cap are treated as signature brand sound effects.

Holding Consistency Across 48 Episodes

DELIVERABLE 5

The brief's hardest requirement. It is answered by documents and discipline, not by talent.

Series Bible

Locked in the build phase and version-controlled. Characters, voice, world rules, what each person would and would not say.

Look Book & LUTs

Two graded LUTs plus a reference still for every set-up. The colourist matches to the still, not to memory.

Wardrobe Continuity Plan

Issued before every batch shoot, as the brief requires. Per-character colour and silhouette locked; each look logged and photographed.

Set Continuity Log

The apartment is on retainer and photographed from six fixed marks. Nothing moves between batches without being logged.

Shot-Grammar Card

A one-page card on every call sheet: the six recurring set-ups, their lens, height and lighting state.

Single-Owner Rule

One director, one DoP, one editor, one colourist across all six batches. Continuity is cheapest when it lives in the same heads.

Every one of these documents is a named deliverable in our pre-production schedule and is shared with the client and agency.

The Outro System

DELIVERABLE 5

Built once as four reusable templates, then rendered 48 times. Subcontracted to a Myanmar animation studio for fast revision turnaround.

1

Final friendship reaction

2

Everyone freezes in a group pose

3

Live action becomes 2D illustration

4

They enter the Chingu label world

5

Camera transitions to the bottle

6

Beauty shot + campaign message

Four templates, built to the cast mix

2-cast

10 episodes

3-cast

26 episodes

4-cast

8 episodes

5-cast

4 episodes

In five-person episodes the three core friends stay centre-frame and the ambassadors or guests are positioned around them, exactly as the brief specifies.

How we keep it cheap at volume

- Character illustrations drawn once from the locked cast, then reused
- Freeze pose shot against a marked floor position every time
- Label world, bottle transition and campaign card are a single locked back half
- Per-episode work is limited to pose swap, wardrobe recolour and timing
- Two rounds of template revision built into the build phase, before Batch 1 locks

The outro is the brand asset the audience will see 48 times. We treat it as a product, not as an episode ending.

Product Beauty Shot

DELIVERABLE 5

A dedicated table-top shoot in the build phase. One reusable master per approved flavour, plus versioning plates.

Shoot direction

- Chilled bottle with built condensation, held on a cooled surface
- Label kept clean, level and fully readable at thumbnail size
- Approved flavour-matched fruit only, fresh cuts, droplets and splashes
- A distinct colour world per flavour, carried into the outro card
- Korean food dressed as an optional secondary layer
- Premium but youthful lighting — bright, not moody
- Motion-control moves so every flavour matches frame for frame
- Clean plate backgrounds shot for later versioning

What it produces

- | | |
|---|--|
|  Master beauty film | One per approved flavour, 6–8 seconds, 9:16 |
|  Outro end-plate | Cut down to the exact outro duration |
|  Still frames | High-res stills pulled for social and key visual use |
|  Clean plates | Background-only passes for future versioning |
|  Loop variants | Seamless loops for platform end-screens |

 A colour world per approved flavour, carried from the beauty shot straight into the outro card:

Original

Cucumber · green apple

Strawberry

Fresh cuts · splash

Grape

Deep violet · gloss

Peach

Warm blush · droplets

Scheduling note

The beauty shoot runs as two dedicated days inside the build phase, before Batch 1 principal photography. It must be scheduled after flavour approval and after final label artwork is signed off — a late label change is the single most likely cause of a costly reshoot on this project. We have costed two beauty-shoot days and flagged the dependency in the risk register on slide 43.

SECTION 02

Execution & Production

Deliverables 2, 3, 4 and 6. How the work actually gets made: approach, pre-production, shooting plan, post workflow, timeline, team structure and shooting requirements.

Overall Production Approach

DELIVERABLE 2

Batch production is not a compromise for volume work. It is the only method that protects quality at 48 episodes.

Shoot by set-up, never by episode

Within a batch we group every scene that shares a location, a lighting state and a wardrobe look — regardless of which episode it belongs to. One lighting rig serves nine scenes across four episodes.

Approve in blocks of eight

Scripts, storyboards and cuts move through approval eight at a time. Fewer approval events, faster client turnaround, and no single late note stalling the line.

Bank one batch ahead

From Batch 2 onward we are always shooting the month after next. The release calendar is insulated from weather, illness and late feedback.

Keep the same hands on it

One director, one DoP, one editor, one colourist for all six batches. The single largest driver of six-month consistency is not process — it is not changing people.

Effect on cost: the same 48 episodes shot episode-by-episode would need roughly 30–35 crew days. Grouped by set-up, they need 18.

Pre-Production Process

DELIVERABLE 2

The build phase, roughly three weeks, plus a one-week prep cycle before every batch.

Stage	What happens	Output	Approval
Script development	Story map of 48 episodes across the six situation buckets. Batch 1 written in full; a rolling bank of eight stays one month ahead thereafter.	Series bible + 48-episode map + scripts	Client & agency, per batch of 8
Script finalisation	Table read with cast, timing pass to bring every episode under 2:00, product-integration check on every scene.	Locked shooting scripts	Client sign-off before prep
Storyboard & shot list	Vertical-frame boards for the turn and the outro; full shot list for every set-up, tagged by lighting state.	Boards + shot list + shot-grammar card	Director & DoP; client on boards
Location scouting	Recce of shortlisted apartments and confirmation of Hong Dae Pocha. Sound, power, access, permission and parking all tested.	Recce report + floor plans + photos	Client on final selection
Casting (supporting)	Supporting cast and extras cast per batch from a standing pool built during the leads casting.	Cast list + contracts	Client on featured supporting roles
Rehearsal	One rehearsal per batch: blocking on the shot-grammar set-ups, then improvisation work on the no-filter sections.	Blocking plan + rehearsal notes	Internal

Casting Strategy

DELIVERABLE 2

Two male, one female, early twenties, university-appropriate. A hybrid approach: audition for range, filter for reach.

Open call

Wide call through university drama groups, agencies and social platforms. Target 120–150 submissions.

Self-tape round

One scripted set-up scene and one improvised no-filter beat. Cuts to a shortlist of ~24.

Chemistry test

Shortlist run in threes, not alone. We are testing interruption rhythm and comic timing between people.

Screen & product test

Final six on camera in the real grade, holding the product. Confirms they read at thumbnail size.

Client presentation

Three recommended trios presented with test footage, so the client chooses a group, not three individuals.

✂ Why hybrid, and not pure creator casting

A creator with a following can carry a launch, but 48 episodes across six months needs actors who can hit a comedic turn on take four at 9pm. We audition for craft first, then weight the final choice toward candidates who bring an existing audience — ideally one lead with meaningful reach, two cast purely on ability.

📄 Contracting the leads

- Six-month engagement with dated availability holds for all 18 shoot days
- Category exclusivity for alcohol for the series term
- Appearance clause: no significant hair or physical change without approval
- Usage rights aligned to the campaign period, renewable
- Stand-ins contracted per batch as insurance against short-notice loss

One Shoot Day, Hour by Hour

DELIVERABLE 6

A twelve-hour call, eleven hours on the floor, one company move, two lighting states, three episodes banked.

Company moves are the enemy of a three-episode day. Days 1 and 2 stay in the apartment; only day 3 travels, and it travels once.

Post-Production Workflow

DELIVERABLE 2

Eight episodes from wrap to delivery in twelve working days, repeated identically six times.

D+1	 Ingest & sync	Rushes backed up in triplicate, synced, logged against the batch board.
D+2–4	 Offline edit	First cuts of all eight episodes. Timing pass to bring each under 2:00.
D+5	 Internal review	Director and EP review. Notes applied before anything leaves the building.
D+6	 First cut to client	All eight delivered together with a single consolidated review call.
D+7–8	 Client feedback	Consolidated notes returned within three working days. Revision round one applied.
D+9–10	 Grade & sound	Colour to locked LUT and reference stills. Sound design, mix, music cues laid.
D+11	 Outro & graphics	2D transformation rendered from the correct cast template. Titles and payoff cards.
D+12	 QC & delivery	Subtitles, platform specs, safe-zone check, master and platform files handed over.

Delivery formats: 9:16 master (ProRes), platform-ready H.264 per channel, burned-in and sidecar subtitles in Myanmar and English, plus a clean textless version of every episode for archive and re-versioning.

Review Process & Responsibilities

DELIVERABLE 2

Clear ownership at every stage. Approval speed is the single biggest schedule risk on a batch series.

Stage	Client (Chingu Soju)	Agency	Production House
Story map & bible	Approve	Review & consolidate	Author
Scripts (per batch of 8)	Approve	Consolidate notes	Write & revise
Casting	Approve final trio	Recommend	Source, test, present, contract
Locations	Approve	Review	Scout, negotiate, permit, insure
Wardrobe & continuity plan	Note	Review	Author & maintain
Storyboards & shot list	Note	Review	Author
Product integration & DBA	Approve	Brand guardian	Execute on set
Beauty shot & label	Approve artwork	Supply final artwork	Shoot & deliver
First cut (per batch)	Consolidated notes in 3 days	Consolidate & submit	Deliver & revise
Final master	Approve	Approve	QC, deliver, archive
Publishing & scheduling	Own	Own	Supply platform-ready files

Feedback must be consolidated into a single response per batch. Sequential or conflicting notes from multiple stakeholders are the most common cause of schedule slip and are treated as an additional revision round under the policy on slide 41.

Team Structure

DELIVERABLE 4

Core team retained across all six batches. Department sizes scale with the batch's cast count and locations.

Shooting Requirements

DELIVERABLE 6

Days, locations and studio needs. Recurring-location costs are separated from additional-location costs, as the brief requires.

 18 Principal days

 2 Beauty shoot days

 1 Pick-up day

 21 Total shoot days

Recurring locations

Cost these separately in the quotation — they are a fixed six-month commitment.

Character's apartment

Retained for six months. Youthful and lived-in, flexible for day and night, large enough to light and move camera in, and able to hold recurring props between batches. Photographed from six fixed marks for continuity.

Korean restaurant

Hong Dae Pocha, Myanmar Plaza — as recommended in the brief. Booked for 18 pre-agreed shooting slots. Final confirmation depends on filming permission, Chingu availability, fee, sound conditions and access.

Additional locations

Quoted per use, drawn down as storylines require. We plan roughly eight across the season.

- Convenience store
- Office or shared workspace
- University or MBA-related setting
- Café
- Street or car
- Additional Korean restaurant
- Secondary character's home
- Celebration or karaoke environment

No studio build is required. The apartment retainer replaces a set build at lower cost and higher realism.

Equipment, Props, Wardrobe & Logistics

DELIVERABLE 6

Full commercial-tier package, held for the season so the look never changes between batches.

Equipment

- Cinema camera body, 4K, native 9:16 framing
- Prime lens set: 35 / 50 / 85mm
- Second camera body for reaction coverage
- Gimbal and slider for the no-filter state
- Full lighting package: soft key, practicals, negative fill
- Grip: stands, flags, diffusion, rigging
- Sound: radio mics × 5, boom, mixer/recorder
- Monitors, DIT cart, media and backup drives
- Power distribution and generator where required

Props & Set

- Recurring apartment dressing kept in place between batches
- Character prop kits — tote, sunglasses, cracked phone
- Product props: bottles, glasses, coolers, condensation kit
- Korean food styling for pocha and beauty-shot days
- Group-chat and phone-screen graphics prepared in advance
- Continuity photo log maintained from six fixed marks

Wardrobe, Makeup & Logistics

- Locked colour and silhouette per character
- Multiple looks per batch to allow set-up grouping
- No competitor alcohol branding or visible third-party logos
- Nothing that competes with the product's colour world
- Wardrobe continuity plan issued before every batch shoot
- Natural, youthful makeup; touch-up between lighting states
- Crew, cast and equipment transport across 21 shoot days
- Catering for crew and cast; accommodation only if required

Supporting cast and extras: approximately two supporting roles and six extras per batch, cast from a standing pool built during lead casting.

SECTION 03

Costing & Terms

Deliverables 1, 7, 8 and 9. Cost breakdown, revision policy, payment terms and the risk and contingency plan.

Revision Policy

DELIVERABLE 7

What is included, what is chargeable, and the conditions under which a reshoot becomes necessary.

Included in the quotation

 Scripts	2 rounds per episode
 Storyboards	1 round per batch
 Offline edit	2 rounds per episode
 Grade and mix	1 round per batch
 Outro templates	2 rounds during build phase
 Beauty shot	1 round per flavour master

What a round covers

- Dialogue, structure and pacing changes within the approved story
- Shot selection, trims and reordering within existing footage
- Graphics, subtitle and payoff-card amendments
- Colour and audio adjustments within the approved look
- One consolidated set of notes, submitted together, within 3 working days

Chargeable as additional

- Any round beyond those included — per-round rate: MMK per episode scope 10%.
- Notes returned later than 3 working days, or arriving in separate waves
- Changes to an approved script after the batch has been shot
- Changes to brand assets, label artwork or campaign line after approval
- New episodes, new characters or new locations outside the approved map

Reshoot conditions

A reshoot is triggered only by a change that cannot be resolved in post: a rewritten scene after shooting, a product or label change after the batch, or a cast change mid-season. Reshoots are quoted at a half or full day rate plus location, talent and equipment, and are scheduled into the next batch's pick-up window rather than as a separate call. Technical failure on our side — media loss, focus, sound — is reshot at our cost.

Payment Terms

DELIVERABLE 8

Mobilisation advance to fund the build phase, then payment on delivery of each batch.

40%

On signing

Mobilisation. Funds the build phase: bible, scripts, casting, location retainer deposit, LUT and outro development, beauty shoot.

30%

On delivery of each batch

Payable on acceptance of each set of eight episodes.

20%

On final delivery

Payable on acceptance of Episode 48 and handover of masters, textless versions and project archive.

↗ Cash flow across the engagement

Conditions

- Invoices payable within 14 days of issue
- Acceptance is deemed given if no notes are received within 5 working days of delivery
- Batch payments are independent — a query on one batch does not hold another
- All figures exclusive of applicable taxes, which are shown separately at item 12.0
- Third-party costs above an agreed threshold are passed through at cost with documentation

Cancellation, postponement & additional costs

- Postponement with more than 14 days' notice: rescheduled at no charge
- Postponement within 14 days of a shoot: committed crew, cast, location and equipment costs are payable
- Cancellation after mobilisation: the advance is retained against work completed and third-party commitments
- No additional cost is incurred without written approval from the client in advance

Risk & Contingency Plan

DELIVERABLE 9

The one-batch buffer absorbs most of what follows. These are the mitigations behind it.

Risk	Exposure	Mitigation	Impact if it lands
Talent unavailability	High	Dated availability holds for all 18 days at contracting. Stand-ins contracted per batch. Episodes are cast-flexible within a bucket, so a two-hander can replace a three-hander at short notice.	Absorbed by the batch buffer
Weather or location loss	Medium	Both recurring locations are interiors. Additional locations always have a named alternate. Apartment retainer means we can move a day indoors without a new negotiation.	Absorbed — no cost impact
Equipment failure	Low	Two camera bodies on every shoot day. Rental house within same-day reach. Media backed up in triplicate before anything is formatted.	Half day at most
Late or conflicting approvals	High	Approvals batched in eights. Single consolidated feedback route. Acceptance deemed after 5 working days. This is the most likely cause of slip on this project.	Chargeable revision; buffer absorbs the schedule
Label or flavour change after shoot	Medium	Beauty shoot scheduled only after artwork sign-off. Clean plates shot for versioning so a label change is a graphics job, not a reshoot.	Graphics cost only, if plates exist
Reshoot required	Low	Pick-up window built into every batch's day 3. Reshoots roll into the next batch rather than triggering a standalone call.	No separate crew call
Cast change mid-season	Low	Scripted as an in-world departure and return — the awkward reunion bucket exists partly for this. Recast handled in the next prep week.	One prep week; story absorbs it

A contingency of 8% is carried at item 11.0. Production insurance covering equipment, third-party liability and cast is included in item 5.0.

NEXT STEPS

What Happens After You Say Yes

01

Title & creative direction

Client selects a title direction and confirms the character bible. Two working days.

02

Contracting & mobilisation

Agreement signed, advance released, build phase begins. Week 1 of September.

03

Casting presentation

Three recommended trios presented with test footage. End of week 2.

04

shoot

Three days. Episodes 1–8 in the bank, one month before launch. Week 3.

Chingu moves beyond simply being present at the gathering.
We would like to build the world where it becomes the key.